CONTRIBUTORS

John Beer, of Peterhouse, Cambridge University, is the author of Blake's Humanism and Blake's Visionary Universe.

G. E. Bentley, Jr., University of Toronto, is an editor (1963 ff.), bibliographer (1964), and biographer (1969) of Blake.

Raymond Deck has finished a dissertation, 'Blake and Swedenborg,' at Brandeis University and will spend the 1977-78 academic year there making a book on the topic. His article, 'New Light on C. A. Fulk: Blake's Nineteenth-Century Patron,' appears in the current issue of Studies in Romanticism.

Thomas Dilworth lectures in English literature at the University of Toronto. He has written an article on Conrad's relationship to Rodin and is currently working on a book about the modern British painter-poet, David Jones.

Detlef W. Dorrbecker is an advanced graduate student in the departments of Art History and English Literature, Johann Wolfgang Goethe University, Frankfurt am Main. At present he is writing an article on the preliminary drawing for Jerusalem, a note on an early German Blake reference, and another review essay for Blake on the state of Fussell scholarship and its relevance to Blake studies.

David V. Erdman is Professor of English at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and Director of Publications at the New York Public Library.

Robert F. Gleckner is the author of The Mirror and the Bard: A Study of William Blake, Byron, and the Poets of Paradise, and editor of Romanticist Poets of Vice, Selected Writings of William Blake, and the Complete Poetry of Lord Byron. He is also a professor of English at the University of California, Riverside.
Corinne M. Henning is a freelance writer living in England.

Donald L. Kent, M.D. with a specialty in ear, nose, and throat, formerly of Yale Medical School (as a graduate and resident), is now a major at West Point. He has published a number of articles in various medical journals.

Vivian Mercier is Professor of English at the University of California, Santa Barbara. The author of The Irish Comic Tradition (1964) and Shakespeare (1977), he entered Trinity College, Dublin, with a Sizarship in Latin and Greek, but gave up Classics for English and French Literature.

Karen Mulhallen teaches English at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and is working on a book on Blake's Night Thoughts.

Dennis Read teaches in the Department of English at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Grant C. Roth is an Assistant Professor of English at Housatonic Community College, Bridgeport, Conn. He has previously published an article in Exposition on King Lear and for his Ph.D. dissertation at S.U.N.Y. (Albany) is editing a ninth-century Latin Commentary on Beowulf.

Richard J. Schroyer studied at Yale (B.A.) and at Toronto (M.A., Ph.D.) under G. E. Bentley, Jr. and Northrop Frye. He now teaches at the University of Western Ontario, London, Canada, and is currently preparing editions of Lavater's Aphorisms and Blake's Island in the Moon.

Ruthven Todd born 14 June 1914 and been ill many times since, physically and mentally. As a Genius, he should not have been given a name pronounced 'riven' as that merely helped tear him asunder.

David Worrall teaches at the Royal Grammar School, Newcastle-Upon-Tyne. An article on Blake and Erasmus Darwin appeared in BLAFOL and 'Jerusalems and the Visionary History of Britain' is forthcoming in Studies in Romanticism.
